

ENGL 4603.001: Fiction Workshop

Spring 2024

T/R 1:00-2:25 pm

Mark Mayer - mmayer@memphis.edu

This course offers a rigorous exploration of the fiction writing process. Students will engage in collaborative discussions, focusing on story structure, emotional depth, character development, language use, and the iterative nature of rewriting.

This course offers students:

- A supportive environment for collaborative creation and peer critique.
- The flexibility to pursue projects that align with their individual interests.
- A reading list that explores the formal variety of short fiction.
- A semester-long engagement with the revision process.

Students are invited to write fiction in any form or genre that excites them and will be trusted to develop their own self-directed fiction projects.

Required Texts:

- ENGL 4603 Coursepack